The building would be between the handsome Vass and Williamson homes, and the people of the whole neighborhood seem averse to having the Y. M. C. A. in their midst. The contest is attracting considerable attention. Some of those lighting the present purpose of the committee as to location are men who rendered the most effective service in the campaign for the Y. Best of the Season.

"Wildfire" was presented at the Academy last night by the Schiller Players as the third week's offoring of that organization, and Lillian Russell was not missed. To those who remember the production as presented by Miss Russell and her company, this should mean much for the ever beautiful Lillian has always, and doubtless will shways, lend glamor to any performance. But Hose Tapley, who made her debut as leading woman of the stock company with last night's performance, caught the audience from the rise of the curtain, and held its attention until long after Wildfire had won the race and made the fortune of the family absolutely secure.

Pretty and winning, with that peculiar knack not always apparent even in the feminine, of wearing gowns, she went straight over the footlights to the people who were there to see her perform and won their friendship and praise. Miss Tapley has been seen here before, but never has she been ween to such good advantage as in her portrayal of the dashing Mrs. Hen-families. This time you have heard families?

It isn't the first time you have heard such talk. On more than one occasion rumor has stalked brazenly through the streets of Richmond crying that the grand old capital of the Confederacy was going to land snugly and gracefully in the Class A ranks, only rumor has a habit of saying things that she can't quite substantiate.

This time, however, the cry comes clear, and its echoes seem to ring true. No talk has been had with Owner Bradley, nor is it known how he would welcome such a move. When first the idea of a Richmond team in the Eastern League was suggested he would welcome such a move. When first the idea of a Richmond team in the Fastern League was suggested he was not favorable, offering as reasons that the city was not large enough; that the expense which such a move would entail would be entirely too great; that Richmond was not quite ripe for advanced gate charges, and more of a similar variety.

In his argument against the proposition the local magnate was upheld by many who have had a zionee belind the scenes and realize that everything in baseball is not profit.

Illehmond thas Gravan.

But considerable water has run up and down the mighty James since those days. Skyscrapers have been built, the population has increased; everybody in this good old town is suffering from a plethora of the good things of life; wages are high and money is plentiful, or, at least, so it appears from evidences of prosperity on every corner. Richmond, from just a city a few years ago, has developed into a metropolis to-day.

Fans who a year or two ago were eatisfied with Virginia League baseball have had the'r appetites whetted for better things on the baseball menu, and are asking for it every day. So with the demand existing, and with the opportunity offered, in the words of a far greater philosopher, why not?

Rattimore Ready far Big League.

The sum and substance of the situation is simply this: Baltimore, by appealing to the civic pride of her business men and manufacturers, has raised more than $500,000 to purchase

Performents have come thick and fast. Ned Haulon, creator of the famous Orloles, several times winner of the famous orloles, small price, comparatively, it is believed that $50,000 or $60,000 will turn the trick. The question now arises is allowed that $50,000 or $60,000 will turn the small price, comparatively. It is believed that $50,000 or $60,000 will turn the small price, comparatively. It is believed that $50,000 or $60,000 will turn the small price, comparatively. It is believed that $50,000 or $60,000 will turn the small price, of it all is that all of dusiness ball more is behind the move to get a franchise in one of the big leagues. The question of money does not enter, for Baltimore will raise any sum. "Baltimore in the big league" is the slogan of the public-spirited citzens who have gone so far as to have banners printed and strung across the streets carrying the slogan. The big men of the town are working tooth and nati, realizing that they are at the same time advertising the city. The newspapers have dropped petry squabbles and jealousies, and have joined with the public-spirited citzens to aid in the good cause. From the Monumental City comes the information that 1912 will find Baltimore in the big league.

Here is where Richmond comes in.

most baseball city in the South, sec-ond only, and not very far behind the big tent itself.

Merchants, manufacturers and busi-ness men of Richmond, get together Let's make the slogan now, "Richmond in the Eastern League."

It will be the biggest advertising scheme the city has ever indulged in the Metropolls of the South.

Opportunity at Hand.

The opportunity is at hand The city is ripe for improved baseball. The fans—the supporters of the gamewant better baseball. Richmond in the Eastern League would be a moneymaker from the beginning. The time to start is now. The money is of minor consideration, for if Baltimore can raise unlimited capital for her enterprise, Richmond can certainly raise $60,000 for hers.

Erskine Buford, the hard-hitting Richmond boy, defeated M. A. Colton, 6-4, 6-3; W. C. Grant won from Wiley by the score of 8-2, 6-2.

The Buford-Colton setto was probably the prettiest of the afternoon. Both men played well, but the local man's superb serving and severe strokes annexed him many a point, and Colton finally succumbed, although making a strong fight for honors, Waddey Wood, of Washington, and Lewis divided two sets in an unfinished meeting.

Men's Singles.

Those who were shoved into the first round through "byes" were Graves vs. Zinn. Britton vs. Lindsey, Ricks vs. Fischer, H. E. Doyle (to play winner of H. M. Davenport-Hubbard match): Evans (to play winner of Blair-Gessing match); Woodson vs. Macon, A. R. Davenport vs. C. B. Doyle, Bogert vs. Robb.

Bavenport vs. C. B. Doyle, Bogert vs. Robb.

The strongest among the field, and the probable challenger to meet R. H. Palmer, the holder and twice winner, is Theodore Roosevelt Pell, of New York. Pell was ranked eighth last year, the highest rating he has ever achieved. This player is considered one of the foremost racket-wielders in the country. He was especially conspicuous at prominent tournaments last summer, being a strong contender at all times. At the blue ribbon event at, Newport in August he defeated W. F. Johnson, and played superbly against the wonderful young Californian, M. E. McLoughlin. His successes were the winning of the championship of New England for the fourth successive year, the national indoor championship, Ardsley-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., defeating Carlton R. Gardner.

wonderful playing of G. F. Touchard, of New York, whose name is entered in the tournament, is greatly regrected. Touchard is ranked seventh, and is without a doubt one of the cleverest men on the courts. W. C. Grant, whose rating is twenty-seven, will be watched closely, since, excepting Palmer and Pell, he is the most formidable in the tourney.

Some of the other visiting players entered are A. H. Allen, of Hoosier Falls; Clarence Fisher, of Baltimore; Waddey Wood, John Graves, John Britton, Norris McLenn, A. J. Gore, A. Fisher, H. E. Doyle and C. B. Doyle, all of Washington. The latter is Southern champion, and with his brother, Southour, and the latter cannot come. Lynchburg has sent her quota in Frank J. Hall, O. C. Shanen, Bob Oglesby, W. A. Davidson and R. M. Woodson. Hall showed his ability when he came through the tournament last year, and in the challenge round took a set from the hard-hitting southpaw. R. H. Palmer. The mon's doubles event had and bean Grank. Jaternaya.

Day-Courts in Good Condition.

Ladies' Singles.

In the ladies' singles sixteen entries are found. Either through respect for the prowess of the Richmond girl or for some other reason, the presence of the visiting woman player is about one to sixteen. The absence of Miss Hildegarde Turle, who is now no longer single, is disappointing. The winner of this tournament will play Wirs. W. E., Sullivan, the holder. The matchings follow: Miss Meta Randolph vs. Miss Marguerite Short, of Wilmington, N. C.; Miss Colson vs. Miss Jullet Martin; Miss Sophie Meredith vs. Mrs. Julia Joynes; Miss Pauline Powers vs. Miss Solson; Miss Mary Boyd vs. Mrs. Garnett Nelson; Miss Mary Boyd vs. Mrs. Garnett Nelson; Miss Lelia Willis.
